Creating the Layout of the Learning Sequences

Students benefit from consistent flows and formats that are easy to understand and navigate. How you plan the layout of your course to help students be more successful depends on how you intend to provide instruction and manage your course.

Keeping the learning sequences as consistent in layout as possible, as well as including both an overview document at the start of each sequence and a link to your course questions forum (often referred to as Ask-a-Question) within each sequence, helps support student success. You can use “content folders” or “learning modules” to organize your learning sequences.

“Content Folder” Layout Sample

```
Organize the learning sequence materials and activities in a similar way in each sequence you build for the course.

OR

“Learning Module” Layout Sample

```
Welcome the student and list objectives, activities, and due dates, etc...
